Sarah assists in the management of domestic and international intellectual property portfolios, counseling, clearance, prosecution, and enforcement. She also has experience in internet takedowns, and routinely drafts demand letters and coexistence agreements. Sarah's advertising and marketing practice involves counseling clients on consumer protection laws, including the federal Lanham Act and Federal Trade Commission regulations, and state unfair competition laws. She also advises on sweepstakes promotions and gaming.

Previous Work

Sarah first joined the firm as a Trademark Summer Associate. Prior to joining ArentFox Schiff, Sarah was an Intellectual Property Intern for an arts education non-profit. Prior to law school, she spent two years as a litigation assistant at a boutique firm.
