Client Work

Ross is both a trusted advisor and an accomplished litigator. He regularly counsels multinational companies on strategies for protecting and enforcing their trademarks and copyrights in the United States and around the world. This includes providing guidance on the clearance and prosecution of trademarks and trade dress, negotiating licenses and other IP contracts, and counseling clients on the use and enforcement of trademarks and copyrighted content on social media and other online platforms.

Ross is also an experienced trademark and copyright litigator, and represents clients in high-stakes litigation in federal and state courts, the U.S. Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, and other venues. He has particular expertise in the enforcement and defense of non-traditional trademarks. For example, Ross has successfully litigated cases involving the color magenta, a dog treat shaped like a toothbrush, the letter "P" and even a piece of candy dressed up like a cowboy. On the copyright side, Ross has successfully represented clients in disputes over apparel designs, photographs, printed publications, and computer source code, among many others.

Ross recently served as an expert witness on copyright law, transactions, and litigation in an arbitration in the charter school industry.

Previous Work

Ross served as an intern for the Honorable Paul L. Friedman of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

Professional Activities

Ross is a member of the International Trademark Association (INTA), and currently serves on the Publications Committee (Ideas & Innovations Subcommittee). Ross is also a member of Marques (the European Association of Trademark Owners), and currently serves on the Anti-Counterfeiting & Parallel Trade Committee.
