Tyler regularly represents financing institutions and institutional investors in a variety of financing transactions, including private placements, mezzanine financings, senior and unsecured financings, acquisition financings, and other structured financings.

Previous Work

Before joining ArentFox Schiff, Tyler was an associate in the Corporate Group of a New York City law firm. He represented non-bank financial institutions, institutional investors, and corporations in structuring and negotiating a broad range of finance and corporate matters, including asset-based loans, securitizations, institutional investments in FinTech platforms, and private middle-market mergers and acquisitions.
